

SAMPLE – A FICTIONAL GROUP

SEQUIN: Concept Review

This sample shows the format and depth of a Concept Review, built on a fictional brief. A real review runs 8–15 pages and is built on your own brief, demo, and unreleased visuals.

THE BRIEF (FICTIONAL)

SEQUIN — a five-member girl group from a mid-size label, debuting in four months. Working concept: five members, five colors of sparkle. Debut track: mid-tempo dance-pop. The moodboard collects neon, crystals, and outer space.

01 – DIAGNOSIS

The name is right. The concept reads the name backwards.

What works: a bright, wearable name, and sparkle is made for the stage.

What collides: "five members, five colors" is the most used debut device in the genre. It introduces members, not a group. And the name says sequin while the concept says colors — the brief is built on the output, not the object.

What is too much: neon, crystals, and space are three worlds. Any one of them can carry a debut; together they cancel out.

A sequin isn't a sparkle. It's the angle that catches the light.

02 – DIRECTION

ROUTE A RECOMMENDED

The Catch. A sequin only sparkles when it moves. The world starts still and matte; sparkle appears only when all five move together and catch the light at once. Sparkle has to be danced. Push this one thing to the extreme.

ROUTE B

Mirror. A material-led world — reflection, surfaces, being seen. Stronger in fashion, weaker as a story that can run for years.

03 – VISUAL SYSTEM PRINCIPLES (ROUTE A)

Still by default. Sparkle has to be earned.

COLOR	Matte black, bone, and silver as the base. Color appears only in moving light — never as five uniform member colors.
TYPE	A wordmark set in small tilted tiles — each letter catching light at a slightly different angle.
MOTIF	The tilt — small angled surfaces repeated in set pieces, lighting rigs, and camera moves that sweep across them.
STYLING	Matte base, sequins used sparingly — one sequined detail per member, placed where it moves most: a sleeve, a hem, a glove.

04 – CHECKPOINTS

FILM	The first full sparkle arrives only at the chorus, when the five move as one. Before that, still and matte.
STAGE	One unison move per song, lit so the whole stage flashes at the same beat.
ROLLOUT	Teasers shot still and matte. The first moving, sparkling frame is held for the debut video.

05 – ROADMAP SKETCH

01	Still — matte and motionless. The debut introduces the group as one body.
02	Catch — five angles. Each member catches the light her own way.
03	Shower — the whole stage in sparkle, five moving as one.

A Concept Review delivers this in two weeks — diagnosis, one or two directions, visual system principles, checkpoints, and a roadmap — built on your team's brief and material. From USD 1,000.
